PRICE THREE CENTS

PROBE MONEY TRANSACTIONS OF WATER CO.

State Committee Investigates Intercompany Loans Of Penn Central.

BENN MENTIONED IN QUESTIONING

The policies of the Samuel Insull utility companies were scanned by the state senate committee investigating the Public Service Commission, Friday. The scrutiny involved the effect of the Insull policies upon the Penn Central Light and Power company, parent firm of the Gettysburg water company.

The committee seeks to determine whether Pennsylvania firms have been weakened by the collapse of the Insull utilities.

From M. A. Miller, of Altoona, the committee learned of intercompany loans which cleared through the Penn Central to other units of the Insull chain. Miller said the transactions totaled $2,956,990 and constituted a "rearrangement of loans."

Oliver K. Eaton, counsel for the committee, termed them "check-kiting" operations and asked "did the Insulls get this money eventually? We want to go into that."

Miller said he could speak only for Penn Central.

Question Financial Status

The committee turned directly to the financial status and policies of the Penn Central.

Miller denied the company must borrow money to pay its November 1 dividend, but said it plans to make a loan in the near future.

Eaton criticized revisions of the capital stock structure which had been made to permit the company to pay dividends of $665,067 on October 1. He charged the company had changed the par value of its capital stock from $9,910,000 to $166,000 and credited the $8,743,000 difference to surplus. He contended this was injurious to the company's consumers, creating a "fictitious" volume which might tend to justify higher rates.

Miller asserted the change would not be injurious to consumers and would protect the equity of common stockholders.

Paid 30 Per Cent Dividends

The witness testified Penn Central paid dividends of $1,149,540, or 30 per cent on common stock valued at $3,797,000 in 1930. In 1931 the dividend was $196,300, or 25 per cent, and in 1932 $166,600. The common stock, he said, is owned by Stroh & Co., trustees in bankruptcy for National Electric Power company.

In his short examination of Walter L. Morgan Friday Eaton repeated a previous assertion that Morgan had altered his records to credit a utility stock transaction to former Commissioner Benn's son instead of to Benn himself.

When Eaton declared "You put the 'Junior' in later," Morgan asserted "it makes no difference; Benn bought the stock on December 29, 1931, and credited it to his son's account."

Eaton, who said the transactions are "confusing," claimed certain entries were made to enable Morgan to show a stock loss for 1932 income tax purposes.

Morgan left the stand asserting Benn "never made any profit from my transactions."

SCOUTS READY FOR NUT MEET

Youngsters Gather Many Bushels Of Black Walnuts; Prizes November 5.

Nut gathering for the annual nutting pilgrimage sponsored by the Adams county lone scout tribe, of the York-Adams area council, boy scouts of America, which will be held on the Gettysburg battlefield, in front of the Pennsylvania monument, on Saturday afternoon, November 5, is in full swing and many personal records are being made. An outstanding gatherer is Scout Dwight Sites, a member of the Glenwood lone scout patrol. Scout Sites has gathered in excess of 70 bushels of black walnuts for the project. This is about 50 bushels over last year's highest, 25 bushels, which were gathered by Clyde Sowers, who was also proclaimed national champion. A scout of the Fairfield troop number 83 has gathered 53 bushels, and two more members reported 40 bushels each. Although over 625 bushels of black walnuts should be delivered at the pilgrimage gathering.

The offer of a complete scout uniform to each scout who gathers 25 or more bushels of nuts has proved an added incentive. About 20 scouts will win uniforms. Two groups are working for the loving cup that is to be presented to the group contributing the largest amount.

This year's nut crop is phenomenal in the sections west of here, according to Charles Lott, chairman of the pilgrimage. This has been the main reason for the large gatherings. Hundreds of bushels are being left on the ground.

The pilgrimage on November 5 is open to the public.

Police Seeking Woman Kidnapper

Cleveland, Oct. 29 (AP).—Three squads of detectives today began searching for a woman seen dragging a boy into an automobile a week ago today, the day 8-year-old Ebert Holleran disappeared.

Meanwhile a hunt was continued for an unidentified "man in a gray sedan" who threatened the boy several months ago.

Still another search was in progress for two men who attempted to entice Geraldine Glansky who lives in the same neighborhood as the Hollerons into their machine last night by offering her candy.

URGES RETURN TO OLD CHURCH

Guest Pastor Delivers Sermon At Presbyterian Church Service.

The week-day services in the series of special inspirational meetings held this week in the Presbyterian church came to a conclusion Friday night with a sermon by the Rev. Dr. Raymond C. Walker, minister at the Market Square Presbyterian church, Harrisburg.

Speaking with spiritual fervor born of a passionate concern for the welfare of men's souls, Dr. Walker pleaded for a return of that very passion to the church. This he termed "life's elemental passion."

Compares Lives

Reviewing the heralds of this passion, from Moses and the Old Testament prophets to the evangelical preachers of the eighteenth century and the missionary crusade in the Orient, he compared their lives with the lives of those in the present churches. The hope of the world lies in the rekindling of the fires in the lives of Christians. This may be accomplished not by a high pressure campaign, but by a return, or if you will by an advance, to the faith of our fathers, a return to a living faith in the integrity of the Word of God, a new devotion, an emphasis upon the centrality of Christ and his cross, an emphasis upon the living, omnipotent Christ, and finally a return to the fundamental passion of Paul, the speaker said.

In concluding Dr. Walker declared that "we, the Church, have the word which is sufficient to right the world.—It is the name of Jesus, and it is for us, the church, to give it the correct accent."

A quartet of Gettysburg college students furnished special music for the service.

With the Sunday services the special evangelistic emphasis of these meetings will be concluded. On Sunday morning the pastor of the church will preach on "Discipleship," and in the evening, the Rev. John M. Davies, pastor of the Great Conego Presbyterian church, of Hunterstown, will preach in a service of thanksgiving and praise.

LOCAL TURKEYS ARE PLENTIFUL, SURVEY REVEALS

City Consumers May Purchase Fowl By Halves, Because Of Weight.

PRICES ARE NOT YET DETERMINED

Adams county farmers may have to do a lot of explaining when they carve the Thanksgiving turkey next month, and two children, each clamoring for a drumstick may more than try father's patience.

Many turkeys will appear with only a single drumstick this year, in fact, it may be wrong to call it a turkey, because it may be only a half a turkey.

In an effort to dispose of this year's turkey crop, estimated to be 15 to 30 per cent greater than normal, the Institute of American Poultry Industries, has suggested that turkeys be sold by halves—if the customer wants one that way. The institute tells why.

Choice young tom turkeys of the proper size and condition weigh from 15 to 18 pounds each. This size also possesses the best flavor.

Too Big For Family

But, the average American family of man and wife with probably two children can not eat that much turkey without having left-overs for a week. The average roaster also will not harbor the huge frame of a bird that size, nor will the gas or electric oven.

Therefore, the family compromises on a duck, a goose, or perhaps a couple of chickens.

Mrs. Clara Ge Bard Snyder, director of foods and nutrition for the institute, conceived the idea that half a turkey was better than no turkey at all.

The idea was broached to large turkey handlers. Many have agreed to give it a trial.

Then too, the idea of price also enters.

But father will still have to explain why the turkey has only one drumstick.

Adams county grown birds, however, are expected to go on the market with both legs, so that conditions prevailing in cities and elsewhere where turkeys are imported may not occur in Adams county.

Turkeys Plentiful

Norman J. King, near East Berlin, Adams county's largest turkey raiser, said his turkeys will be sold intact. He has more than 900 turkeys this year, an increase of between 75 and 100 over last year. No price for the turkeys has as yet been set by Mr. King.

YORK GROCERY STORE ROBBED

Bandits Get Loot; Disguised As Halloween Masqueraders.

Using a stolen car, three hold-up men dressed as Halloween masqueraders, held up an robbed William VanPelt, proprietor of a York grocery, Friday night about 9:50 o'clock. The amount of money stolen from the cash register in the store is not known.

Three white men entered the store and called Mr. VanPelt by his name and asked for two pounds of pretzels. A fourth man is believed to have been at the wheel of the stolen car. As Mr. VanPelt bent over the counter to pick up the pretzel can he was knocked over the head by one of the bandits. Another one of the men proceeded to rifle the cash register.

James Gleason obtained the license number of the car in which they were riding. He went to the home of Paul Shive, where he phoned police headquarters and reported the occurrence. Motor Patrolman Luther R. Schaeffer was detailed to the scene of the robbery. Roundsmen John Judy patrolled the streets of the city looking for the car employed by the bandits.

Police believe the bandits broke into the garage of Alexander E. McLean Friday afternoon and stole his automobile. The machine was driven to the corner of Arlington and Irving roads, York, where it was abandoned. From there a car owned by the Anderson Motor Car company, bearing license No. J-2110, was stolen. This car was used by the hold-up men.

Sometime after the robbery was reported, a report came from West York to police headquarters that a car bearing license No. VP-336 was stolen.

King Snake and Rattlesnake Battle Two Hours for History 'Movie'

Trenton, N. J., Oct. 29 (AP).—A king snake and a rattlesnake battled to a draw for more than two hours on the roof of the state house annex Friday afternoon. The performance, staged by the state department of conservation and development for the purpose of obtaining pictures for natural history classes, was witnessed by a group of newspapermen and state officials.

Two king snakes were placed on the roof with the rattler, but failed to attack. Then a five-foot king snake was dropped out of a bag and lost little time in going for his arch enemy, the rattler striking the king with incredible speed.

The king snake quickly curled himself around the rattler until the two appeared like a mass of twisted cord. Thomas McDowell, of New Hope, Pennsylvania, and Byron Ely, of Lambertville, New Jersey, experts in catching and handling venomous reptiles, succeeded in untangling the intertwined snakes.

Two more rounds were put on and then the snakes were left for

"BUGABOO" OF FEAR WEARING OUT, BANKER

Speaker At First National Bank Dinner Cites Bright Outlook.

HUMORIST URGES LIFE OF SERVICE

Expressing optimism for the immediate future of business, based on the history of the human race and the United States in particular, O. Howard Wolfe, president of the Pennsylvania Bankers' association and cashier of the Philadelphia National bank, said "the bugaboo fear is slowly but surely wearing itself out," at the seventh annual dinner for stockholders of the First National bank of Gettysburg at the Hotel Gettysburg, Friday evening.

"People can get too much of anything," he asserted, whether it be joy, anger, fear or any other human emotion. A year ago fear predominated throughout the country. Now that most of the things they feared have not happened, this emotion is giving way to calmer, sounder reasoning, with hope predominating.

Fear Caused Trouble

Mr. Wolfe, formerly director of the reconstruction finance corporation's operations in this section of the state, said ninety per cent of the troubles banks experienced in the last year would have been averted if fear had not encroached people to such an abnormal extent that sound reasoning was forced out.

The speaker answered the charge frequently heard during the present presidential campaign that most of the money loaned by the reconstruction finance corporation went to large banks by declaring that seventy per cent of the loans were given to banks in towns of 5000 or less population.

Mr. Wolfe, whose subject was "Money and Banking," spoke of the three functions of money, as a basis of value, as a store of value and as a medium of exchange. He also explained that discarding the gold standard would have meant taking credit away from business and a hoarding of the precious metal.

Two Fundamentals

"Banking," the speaker continued, "is based on two simple fundamentals—confidence and the law of averages. When confidence in banks is removed, people withdraw their savings and hoard them, thereby taking some of the lifeblood from industry and business. Under the law of averages, a bank is able to loan what another deposits."

Few banks, he added, failed through mismanagement, but most of the failures resulted from fear of depositors.

In closing, Mr. Wolfe discussed the relationship of shareholders, borrowers and depositors to their bank.

The second speaker of the evening was Dr. Francis Harvey Green, headmaster of Pennington School for Boys, Pennington, New Jersey, a humorist of national reputation, whose subject was "At Your Service." Using abundant illustrations from witty stories, poetry and philosophy, Doctor Green developed his subject in its relation to country, community, companions, children and "the other fellow."

Sound Philosophy

Time and again Doctor Green, after having his audience laughing uproariously over some story, sobered his listeners with a recital of some sound, homely philosophy or poetry to illustrate his point.

He urged his hearers to live their lives "unselfishly, energetically and joyously" in the service of others. "Your life is given to you in trust for service," he declared.

Edmund W. Thomas, president of the First National bank, was toastmaster. He said the attendance was larger than that of any previous stockholders' dinner. One hundred and thirty-five men and women were present.

Dr. Luther Kuhlman, Carlisle street, gave the invocation. A Chambersburg orchestra furnished music for the occasion. A roast turkey dinner was served.

LARGE CROWDS
GREET HOOVER

President Asks Voters If They Feel Safe Under Low Import Duties.

On board President Hoover's special, Oct. 29 (AP).—Renewing his attack on democratic tariff policies in addresses in West Virginia, this morning, as he traveled back to Washington from last night's speech in Indianapolis, President Hoover asked West Virginia voters if they could feel safe under an administration pledged to lower import duties.

At Grafton before a crowd estimated by police at 4,000 the chief executive touched on railroad problems, asserting that a year ago the country was "faced with the recalculation" of three-fourths of its roads.

He recalled administration efforts to maintain rail wages until living costs had decreased. The rail workers have now done their part the president said and are receiving the support of the administration and the roads themselves.

He cited "the present pickup in business" as an indication that railroads and other working conditions are on the upgrade.

At Clarksburg shortly after 9 a. m. the chief executive took up almost where he had left off last night in his address in Indianapolis again assailing the democratic tariff.

A crowd estimated at several thousands packed the station platform.

Referring to his investigation of tariff rates as anticipating it would show need for higher barriers and asking again if the country feels "safe" as he pointed to cost of production of materials in the United States as compared with lower costs in foreign countries someone in the crowd at Clarksburg yelled, "That's the stuff."

The train paused briefly at Oakland, Maryland, at 11:21 a. m. The president came to the read platform and expressed his appreciation for the greeting of the crowd estimated by Mayor Stemple at 3,000.

Attempt of 19 to Claim Share
In Wendel Estate Called Hoax

New York, Oct. 29 (AP).—Attempt of 19 middle westerners to establish themselves as fifth-degree relatives of the late Ella E. von E. Wendell and so become possible heirs to a share in her $40,000,000 estate was called a "demonstrable hoax" in surrogates' court Friday by counsel for the estate.

The 19 persons brought their claims of fifth-degree relationship after their previous claims to seventh-degree relationship were recently dismissed.

After John M. Harlan, counsel for the estate, characterized the new claims at a hearing today as a "demonstrable hoax" Surrogate James A. Foley said that the claims were "extremely suspicious."

When the surrogate made this statement counsel for the claimants indicated their desire to withdraw from the case if the claims should be considered false. The claimants live in Illinois, Ohio and Indiana.

The surrogate ordered William S. Duzan, of Hinesboro, Ill., to the stand to tell about the alleged discovery of the letters. Duzan said he was the husband of Mrs. Sallie Wendel Duzan, one of the claimants, and that the letters had been found by another claimant, Mrs. Emma Wendel Hemingway, of Arcola, Ill., where her sister, Mrs. Louise Wendel King, another claimant, now resides.

Surrogate Foley said the letters were subject to "extreme suspicion" and ordered that Duzan appear before him on November 10 with Mrs. Hemingway.

Fairfield High
Takes Soccer Lead

Fairfield high school's soccer team took the lead in the Adams county inter-scholastic soccer league by defeating East Berlin in a hard fought game at Fairfield Friday afternoon, 3-1.

The victors tallied a goal in each of the first two periods and added another in the final quarter. Serft landed a goal for East Berlin in the third period.

Outstanding for Fairfield was the swift, hard play of the entire forward line. East Berlin put up a good defensive game.

The lineups:
Fairfield: Stewart, G.; Reindollar, R.F.B.; Musselman, L.F.B.; Polly, C.H.B.; Geigley, L.H.B.; Weikert, R.H.B.; C. Herring, C.F.B.; Lowe, O.R.; S. Herring, L.R.; Kittinger, O.L.; Bierley, I.L.

HOLD WOMAN IN TERRORIST PLOT

Chicago Official Accused Of Bombing In School Cafeteria War.

Chicago, Oct. 29 (AP).—A 40-year-old woman is being held on conspiracy charges as the "brains" of a group of terrorists who, the police said, was responsible for threats and a bombing in Chicago's school lunchroom war.

Mrs. Gussie Kallis, vice chairman of the Associated Retailers of Chicago, and her husband, Herman, were booked on charges of conspiracy to commit a felony and were held for arraignment Monday.

Chief of Detectives Schoemaker said he was convinced Mrs. Kallis was the writer of three warning notes sent to school officials prior to the bombing of the home of Superintendent of Schools Bogan last Saturday. Tearfully defiant, Mrs. Kallis denied authorship of the notes.

War on Cafeterias

Controversy over operation of cafeterias by schools flared into warfare shortly after Bogan said nearly fifty of his subordinates had been intimidated. He charged that lunchroom operators near schools had organized to close the school cafeterias because the operators were losing business.

"This woman," said Police Sergeant Michael Naughton, "is protecting a group of bombers. They are hiding behind her skirts."

The warnings delivered to the school principals read:

"This is a warning that you are not right to the business people. The sooner you change your mind the better off you will be."

Literature Seized

Handwriting experts at Northwestern university declared the script of the notes was similar to Mrs. Kallis' writing.

Shortly after the arrest of the couple Thursday night police visited headquarters of the Associated Retailers and seized literature.

The literature, police said, described the organization as one "to promote the welfare" of its members and to protect them from "unfair trade practices, discriminatory legislation and taxation and the unlawful vending of merchandise by itinerant peddlers, and to work for the removal of all illegal restraint upon the freedom of choice in the location of stores."

Mooney Glad To Be With Cards

Sylvia, N. C. (AP).—Jim Mooney, the big league southpaw who is so left-handed he shakes hands that way, is right glad to have Gabby Street for his new boss.

Traded to the St. Louis Cardinals by the New York Giants along with some other players, Mooney was not surprised, he said, but "didn't expect to go to the Cardinals or any other particular club."

TRUCK CRASH KILLS TWO

Philadelphia, Oct. 29 (AP).—A driver and his helper were killed shortly after noon Friday when their heavy paper truck ran down a steep grade and crashed into an abutment of the Pennsylvania railroad bridge over Lincoln highway at Malvern.

The truck was telescoped against the stone abutment and the engine pushed back into the cab. Meyer Marshak, 31, the driver, and Reuben Lowershug, 24, the helper, both of the Bronx, New York, were pronounced dead at Bryn Mawr hospital. They were taken to an undertaking establishment at Malvern.

YORK PROHIBITION PARTY
WON'T SUPPORT HAINES

York, Oct. 28.—The prohibition party, of York county, has announced through its county committee, of which D. E. Breneman is chairman, that it will not support for congress Harry L. Haines, whose name appears on the prohibition ticket as well as on the democratic.

Haines, who voted in the last congress for 2.75 per cent beer, apparently did not give satisfactory assurance of support of the eighteenth amendment in reply to a letter from the committee, so the committee came to the conclusion that he did not merit support. Breneman announces. Whom the prohibition party will support for the office was not stated.

The heaviest prohibition vote in ten years is expected in this campaign, owing to former Congressman Uphaw's activity in the county.

Read The Bible With Us Daily

Be not thou envious against evil men, neither desire to be with them:
For their heart studieth destruction, and their lips talk of mischief.

Through wisdom is a house
builded; and by understanding it is established.

And by knowledge shall the chambers be filled with all precious and pleasant riches.

A wise man is strong; yea, a man of knowledge increaseth strength.

For by wise counsel thou shalt make thy war; and in the multitude of counsellors there is safety.
Wisdom is too high for a fool:
he openeth not his mouth in the gate.

He that deviseth to do evil shall be called a mischievous person.
The thought of foolishness is sin; and the scorner is an abomination to men.

If thou faint in the day of

If thou sayest, Behold, we knew

Afterwards he took up lumbering, charcoaling and farming until 1903,

My Beauty Hint

By Colleen Moore

Since beauty demands a tan for summer and a delicate white skin for winter, girls have a problem.
There are many ways of achieving a burnt-toast complexion, but bleaching the skin in the fall is more difficult.

One good way, I find, is to form a paste of corn meal and milk to use as a facial mask. Half an hour is needed to dry the meal on the face after which a washing in milk will result in a complexion two shades lighter!

A healthy tanned skin needs little or no make-up, so the outdoor

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

ON IGNORING

IT IS becoming increasingly easy for me to ignore much that in years past annoyed and irritated me. Whether this is a sign of increasing age or just the mellowing of the years that have been vouchsafed to me, I do not know. One thing is true, however, and this I have learned as a good lesson, it does not pay to let things irritate.

People who used to irritate me, now merely amuse me. I can forget them as easily as they can forget me. The world is too full of people worth remembering and loving!

Family life is a good test of character. There is responsibility, a daily challenge to good humor, training in the art of thoughtfulness and consideration, the opportunity for broadening the mind through reading and conversation; but, best of all, family life teaches one to cooperate and to ignore the petty and annoying things of life that here seem to spring up so frequently.

I have known people to carry about with them, for years, some inconsequential slight on the part of someone whom formerly they liked and honored. In most of such instances, no slight has been intended. If it had been ignored a friendship might have become the stronger.

It is difficult to find anything in this world that is flawless. Human beings are no exception. Most of us are a patchwork of flaws. But most of us have qualities that the world needs to keep it well together.

There is so much to see, so much to discover that is useful, interesting and uplifting, that it seems such a waste of time to pay attention to things that only put us in bad humor. Ignore—and pass on, is not a bad motto. That is, of course, ignore that which doesn't contribute and bring some sort of happiness.

But never ignore beauty in any form, never ignore a friend, never ignore an opportunity to enrich your mind and your heart!

in removing screen make-up at the studio.

Because I use no rouge and only a light dusting of face powder, it is simple to remove this make-up without even using soap.

Washing first in warm water, then in cold and rubbing briskly is sufficient—even to remove the bright, medium heavy lipstick which is my principal make-up accessory.

Minor league baseball, trying desperately to "hold the fort"

through a period of unprecedented depression that has forced many clubs and leagues out of business for the time being, will apply drastic measures of economy to its 1933 program, if the recommendations of the executive committee of the N. A. P. B. L. are adopted this December.

Salary limits will be cut, ranging from $1,000 per month, exclusive of the manager, for Class D clubs, to $6,500 per month, including the manager, for Class AA teams. Played limits also would be cut to a basis of 15 for Classes B, C and D, 16 for Class A and 17 for Class AA,
if the proposals are accepted.

Raps Broadcasting

"The executive committee believes "broadcasting of home games is hurting attendance and urges our clubs to discontinue the practice."

The minor league association, it is revealed, turned down individual club appeals for financial assistance aggregating $60,000 within the past year rather than deplete its reserves or set precedents that could not be sustained.

The executive committee, which has held five meetings in various parts of the country is seeking solutions this year to minor league problems, consists of Judge William G. Bramham, of Durham, N.
C., as chairman; Warren C. Giles, of Rochester; J. Alvin Gardner, of Dallas; Joseph F. Carr, of Columbus, Ohio, and Ross C. Harriott, of Terre Haute, Indiana.

Foolish Football

From Marshall college, at Huntington, West Virginia, comes this report of a colloquy in the dressing room between halves of the football game between Marshall, coached by Tom Dandeleit, and Dick Harlow's
Western Maryland eleven:

Dandeleit summoned his red blooded vocabulary and unleashed it on a bruising tackle.

"Why the devil can't you play ball, Humphreys? Can't you fight —are you feeling badly—or just what's the matter with you?" he inquired.

"Well, coach, I'd feel better if I had a hamburger," replied the star with a ravishing appetite, "and, too—"

"And, too—?" asked Dandeleit.
"I haven't been in the game yet," ed Dandeleit, "but you can't even sit on the bench rightly."

New Books

By John Selby

New York.—Dead more than 20 years, Mary Baker Eddy still is a living force in the spiritual life of this country. She is more; she is the subject of vehement and often acrimonious controversy.

That being the case, a biography of Mrs. Eddy stands a good chance of becoming the focal point of a literary and emotional cyclone.

"Mary Baker Eddy, The Truth and the Tradition," by Ernest Sutherland Bates and John V. Dittmore, contains the makings of such a storm.

For ten years and more Dittmore was an official of the Christian Science church. During his directorship hundreds of letters and documents from and to and concerning Mrs. Eddy were collected for the archives of the church. These, Dittmore says, he had copied, or photostated, for his own files, and with the addition of considerable material collected independently they form the basis of this new effort to interpret the founder of the Christian Science church to the general public.

Without reopening the controversies that followed the recent publication of Edwin Franken Dakin's Eddy biography, it is possible to say that the Bates-Dittmore work is conservatively phrased, minutely documented, readable, and makes Mrs. Eddy seem a comprehensible human being.

Pirate History

The fortunate Philip Gosse has dared carry what for most of us is a boyhood passion into adult life:
our interest in pirates and the bouding main. Gosse has written "The History of Piracy" with a straight face and a pleasant literary style, and made it seem a logical thing to do.

While Gosse was thus involved,
"The Strangest Friendship in History" was being written by George Sylvester Viereck to present the story of Woodrow Wilson's connection with Colonel House. The book contains a large amount of information, and emphasizes strongly the so-called "regency" of the second Mrs. Wilson, as well.

Mr. Franck Again

That accomplished vagabond, Harry A. Franck, has been abroad again, this time for 16 months in the British Isles. Franck had done 22 books of travel observation before "Footloose in the British Isles," and perhaps there may be some connection between the fact that he generally sidesteps pretty description of the scenery for tonic and salty comment on life, and the circumstance that all 22 books still are in print.

Of novels there is no dearth this week. Among the best is Hanns Heinz Ewers' "Rider of the Night," which has to do with post-war Germany and not the Ku Klux Klan; another and most amusing one is
"Peninsula Place" by Denis Mac-

Just Folks

by
EDGAR A. GUEST

JACK O'LANTERN

Pumpkin face, with candle gleaming,
What a hollow thing you're seeming,
Empty-headed, toothless grinner,
Neither good man nor a sinner;
Just a round fat face and yellow
Like some coarse, insipid fellow
Who, despising books and learning
And all tender culture spurning
Just grew fat and gross and juiceless,
Boastful bulk of beef, but useless.

Now your daughter, dancing round
you
As a joy supreme has crowned you,
And your bit of candle sputtering
Sets her youthful heart to fluttering,
It is Halloween—your reign is Brief. Your place the window pane is;

Pumpkin face, thou empty-headed
Sign of foe by parents dreaded,
What we know may she discover
Ere she comes to choose a lover.

Washington Highlights

By Herbert Plummer

Washington.—If the democrats are as successful at the polls on November 8 as they are now claiming they will be, there'll be some rather interesting personalities figuring in the news of Washington during the coming months.

There's Bob Reynolds, of North Carolina, who had been nominated to take the seat of Cameron Morrison. Reynolds describes himself as a one-time professional wrestler, a globe trotter and writer of adventure stories before he settled down to law and politics. He's only 47 years old now.

Fred Brown, who is reported to be giving Senator Moses such a tussle up in New Hampshire is a former baseball player, said to have been the best all-around player at Dartmouth in the last 30 years.

Utah Offers A Scholar

The senate stands a chance of getting a full-fledged Ph.D. and a scholar of first rank in Dr. Elbert D. Thomas, of Utah. Thomas is running against the dean of the senate, Reed Smoot. Although not yet 40 years old, he already has had a remarkable career.

He was a missionary in Japan for five years, starting when he was but 19, and is a student of the orient. Since 1924 he has been a professor of political science at the University of Utah. He also is an author.

The son of Champ Clark, of Missouri, Colonel Bennett Champ Clark, is another senate aspirant inclined to be scholarly. Young Clark has just completed a biography of John Quincy Adams which has brought favorable comment from the critics.

Van Nuy's Another

The man seeking to end the long political career of Jim Watson, of Indiana—Frederick Van Nuy—is another interesting personality.

Van Nuy would come to the senate no stranger to the politically minded in Washington. He was a law partner of the late Senator Ransom, of Indiana.

He is, in which the familiar Ian and Felicity from "Greenery Street" are again on view—with, alas, a successor to Ajax the dog.

Finally, there is for the still numerous admirers of Ellen Terry a reprint of her famous "Memoirs," with additional chapters taking the story through the last 20 years of the actress' life, written by Christopher St. John and Ellen Terry's daughter, Edith Craig.

Communism Grows In Chinese Schools

Peiping (AP).—Educational authorities here view with concern the growth of communism among Chinese students.

Almost every government university has its student "cell", it is said.
The communists make a point of capturing key positions in student organizations.

When the Japanese occupied Mukden a year ago, the student associations of several universities formed an anti-Japanese society, but in less than a month it was brought under communist control.

Other familiar tactics of the radical students are to attend public meetings and heckle speakers who voice hostility to communist theories.

To assist the authorities in handling the situation seven Chinese patriotic organizations here have banded into an anti-communist federation. They urge drastic action to root out the red menace in the schools.

REFRIGERATOR LINER SERVICE

New Orleans (AP).—Refrigerated cargo service between New Orleans and London and Liverpool, which inaugurators claim is the first service of this kind, will be launched in October. The vessels which will sail monthly from this port will carry lard, provisions and other perishables.

NO TRESPASSING

All persons are warned not to trespass on the premises of the undersigned, with dog, gun or trap for the purpose of taking game in any manner or for fishing or in any way injuring or destroying property.
All persons violating the laws of the Commonwealth with regard to trespassing on lands of the undersigned will be dealt with under the provisions of the Act of April 14, 1905.

El Brendel, after three weeks of roughing it on location in the mountains, is sold on civilization forever.

"Nothing to do at night, ever. The radio I brought with me blew up the first night. From the natives we heard horses and saddles, saddles and horses. Newspapers four days late.

"And—" this in a final burst of agony, "name me any one in this location company and I can tell you all his family history, and all his troubles!"

The fact that there was a standing 4:30 a. m. call to work probably had much to do with El's delight at getting back to Hollywood.

Hollywood
Sights & Sounds

By Robbin Coons

Hollywood—If Earl Johnson had not been a Long Beach business man before he decided to raise and train dogs for pictures, he might now be placing all his hopes in the kennel that houses Boy, the newly acclaimed "wonder dog" of the screen.

Johnson knew business, however, and so he has 40-odd dogs on his talent list, all of them more or less busily engaged in picture work. Boy is the star in his canine household, but the rest are working, too.

Johnson gave up his business connections in Long Beach about seven years ago, and "like all country folks," he says, "I came to Hollywood and wanted to see a studio. I brought my dog along."

The dog, not Boy, attracted the attention of William Craft, a director, and before long Johnson was drawing $150 a week for ten weeks, simply because the dog was trained. He has been in the dog business since.

In Starring Role Now
Boy, a German shepherd with an unusually intelligent countenance and graceful lines, was acquired by Johnson for $10 when the dog was a year and a half old. Within three months he had Boy working in pictures, having trained him and found him "eager to learn."

The dog has worked with Warner Baxter, Garbo and Gable, and other stars, and is starred for the first time in "Cross Pull." Boy, grandson of Strongheart, a lamented movie canine, is two and a half years old.

Hollywood—Theatrical names are funny things.

People who haven't them want them, and people who have them sometimes wish they hadn't.

Verree Teasdale, whose name is odd enough to be remembered and short enough to fit in marquee lights and therefore is perfect for stage and screen, often wishes it were just plain "Vera."

"People think Verree is just a fancy spelling of Vera, anyway, I'm sure, and they seldom spell it correctly — with two rs," Miss Teasdale comments. "But I came by it honestly, none-the-less."

It seems that years ago a young Englishman named John Teasdale came to America and joined the union forces in the civil war. In New Orleans he was quartered in the home of a French family named Verree—and to make a long story short, real-life romance equalled fiction. John fell in love with the beautiful young daughter of the family and married her.

The marriage attracted quite a lot of attention," Miss Teasdale says, "because it was the first north-south marriage after the war. At any rate, that's how the name came into our family, and it was given to me when I was born."

Lured By Stage
Spokane, Washington, was her birthplace, and she is the only child of her parents, who moved to New York city when she was two. She grew up with theatrical ambitions, attended dramatic schools, traveled extensively, and at length, fresh from school, began making the rounds of stage producers' offices.

She waited three months before she landed her first job through Al Woods, who finally yielded to her persistence and gave her an interview.

BIGLER BEATS CHAMBERSBURG

Upper Counties Keep Slate Clean With 26 To 0 Victory, Friday

Biglerville high school's undefeated football eleven continued its fast pace Friday afternoon by walloping the Chambersburg high reserves at Biglerville, 26-0.

Coach Thrush's lads were held in check by the Blue and White team in the first period but Biglerville pushed over a brace of touchdowns in the second quarter.

On the first play in the second period, Herman swept around right end for 15 yards and a score. Herman added the point on a place kick. Late in the same period Deardorff went over from the eight yard stripe. The try for the extra point failed.

Herman scored his second touchdown in the third quarter when he circled end for 11 yards. Again the try for the point failed.

A 30-yard forward pass, Deardorff to Burtnor, in the final quarter gave Biglerville its final tally. Another pass, Deardorff to Baumgardner, added the extra point.

Lauver, Bringman and Lupp, reserve men for the upper counters, gave good accounts of themselves.

BULLET FROSH DEFEAT Y. C. I.

Orange And Blue Yearlings Register 14-6 Win Over Yorkers.

Greatly outweighing their opponents, the Gettysburg college freshmen eleven hung up its first win of the season by downing the York Collegiate institute team at York Friday afternoon, 14-6.

"Boo Boo" Zeigler, former Carlisle high luminary, and Johnny Cio, former grid ace at Steelton and Wrenonah, scored the touchdowns for the Orange and Blue team.

Coach Harry Mercer's charges were forced to the limit by the scrappy Y. C. I. tribe, three quarters of the game being played on even terms.

Gettysburg tallied in the first period when Zeigler crossed the line. A pass, Cio to Tribley, was good for the extra point. Y. C. I. came back with a six pointer in the second quarter when Petrov, right halfback, plunged over the goal line. The attempt for the extra point failed.

The frosh sewed up in the contest in the last period when Cio scored. Zeigler place kicked the extra point.

Chapter 12
TRUTH WILL OUT

"You broke up the party, Santa," said Clive. "Congratulations. What's the row?"

"Dicky. They've heard something. What I can't guess."

"Are you home for long?"

"I've not decided."

"Trouble with your husband?"

"That's my business."

"Pardon." He flicked his ash. He waited for her retort. Silence compelled him to continue.

"After all, Santa, my question wasn't impertinent. You've been creating the false impression that I've wronged you."

To his alarm a big tear rolled down her cheek. She brushed it away perfunctorily.

"I'm ashamed. I've treated you rottenly."

"Of course you have."

Weariness overcame her. She placed her hands before her eyes.

"I've got to confess. My marriage is a flop."

What he had heard and what he had conjectured pieced themselves together.

"Is there anything I can do?" he whispered huskily.

She shook her head.

"I can't bear that you should think harshly of me."

"What have you to tell me?"

"About Dicky. Why I took him. I couldn't bear to hurt him. Instead of being jealous at the way we parted, he was sorry. I'll never forget the way he dried my tears. You wouldn't have done that. It seemed such treachery to deceive him. I asked his advice."

"Good heavens! About what?"

"Breaking my engagement and following you to Europe."

"You precious innocence! Let's get this straight. You asked his ad-

Miner Is Judged State's Safest

Martins Ferry, O. (AP) — Dan Thomas, 70, scoffs at the idea that mining is a hazardous occupation. He has worked in a coal mine for 58 years, without experiencing a disabling accident and recently was declared the "safest man in the state."

His record is to be recognized by presentation of an honor certificate by the Joseph A. Holmes safety association.

Although he has worked in the mines virtually all his life, he expects to live to celebrate his golden wedding anniversary this fall.

I couldn't keep a maid when I was alone. Let her go to avoid a scandal."

"I never thought of that," she said humbly.

"Well, think of it next time and oblige me." He disappeared.

So there was going to be a next time! She drew a sigh of relief. She could act naturally now that she was sure she would share this room. Approaching the dressing-table, he applied some tonic to his hair. Not till he was knotting his cravat did he again acknowledge her.

She glanced up palely, like a child who had been slapped.

"May I, Dicky?"

"Cut out that Dicky stuff."

She rose to face him.

"I'm sorry."

"A man doesn't like to be made a fool."

"O, please want me, Dicky—the way you did when I was new."

At the sight of her tears, he melted.

"There! There, little girl! We won't mention it. It's over."

"But I must," she pleaded, "to start things straight."

"What's that?" He stiffened.

"You've not been off with a man?" She shook her head, weeping.

"It's about Clive."

"Clive, by golly! The last you told me he was in Europe."

"I thought he was; but my first night home he was dining with my parents."

"That won't wash, Santa. To see Clive was why you left me."

"But listen, Dicky," she implored. "I'm truthful. You don't need to use these third degree methods."

Stuffed at times by sobbing, she blundered out her confession.

"And so I was unhappy for him. I'd been a wretch to him. And he

OUR TURN, NOW!

Not since 1914—nearly a score of years—has Adams county been permitted to provide the state senator in the General Assembly at Harrisburg from the district comprising Adams and Franklin counties.

Franklin county, because of its larger number of voters, has always controlled this office and sent its own man.

This year, Adams county has a splendid young farmer and business man as a candidate for this office in

JOHNS. RICE of Arendtsville

who is qualified by experience and temperament, and in every respect, to ably represent the District in the higher law making body at Harrisburg.

John S. Rice knows from intimate experience the problems of the farmer, the fruit grower, the business man who is struggling for existence, and all the people of our community, and he is ably fitted to help frame legislation that will bring some sort of relief. He realizes that the orgy of spending of public money of the taxpayers must cease if there is to be any hope of throwing off the heavy burden of public assessments for government operation.

John S. Rice can be elected to the senate at Harrisburg Tuesday, November 8, if the people of Adams county, regardless of their party affiliations, give him their votes. This is more than a party matter—it is an opportunity for all of us to demonstrate our pride in a native son—a successful man of unblemished character.

Let's send an Adams county man to the State Senate, who can be depended upon to represent all the people of the district honestly and conscientiously, regardless of party. We can do this by supporting John S. Rice in preference to a Chambersburg lawyer who has already drawn more than THIRTY THOUSAND DOLLARS of the taxpayers' money as an office holder and who now is "digging in" for MORE through re-election.
